Re: Behavioral Health Managed Care Claims Testing for July 1, 2016 Implementation

The Medicaid behavioral health benefit transition and HARP implementation date for counties outside of New York City is July 1, 2016. This is a major change for both health plans and providers. Based on lessons learned during the NYC implementation, it is critical that providers prepare to test claims submissions with health plans. While the plans and Managed Care Technical Assistance Center (MCTAC) have begun providing technical assistance to prepare providers for billing, testing your systems is an important step in the process of readiness for the transition to managed care.

It is very important that providers test their claiming and remittance system. During the NYC transition, a number of behavioral health providers did not test their systems and ran into significant challenges submitting claims to Managed Care Organizations. While some providers may already be submitting clinic claims to MCOs, this does not mean claims for other behavioral health services will pass through properly. Behavioral Health agencies should test claims for each type of behavioral health service provided.

Below is a list of the Plans with their direct billing department contact information. Providers must proactively reach out to their contracted Plans to begin conversations around steps for testing. If for any reason you are unable to reach the Plan for technical assistance with your claims submission process, please document your concern in the attached OMH Managed Care Question Form or the OASAS mailbox: PICM@oasas.ny.gov.
